WEST TENNESSEE COLLEGE.
JACKSON TENNESSEE.

This Institution will be reopened for the reception of pupils on Monday the 12th of February. The Buildings and Grounds will be refitted and improved so as to adapt them to the use of the College.

It has been put in charge of Rev. William Shelton, A. M., of Brownsville, Tenn.; who will enter on the duties of his office at the opening of the Session. His long experience and high character as a Teacher give the assurance that pupils, put under his charge, will be thoroughly educated; and his extensive reputation, it is believed, will secure for the College an extensive patronage.

He will be assisted by Prof. Benjamin W. Arnold, A. M., of Virginia, who will have charge of the Preparatory Department. After his graduation, he spent three years, before the War, in teaching. During the War, he was a Soldier in the Southern Army. Now he returns to his profession, bringing the highest recommendations of his Scholarship and ability to Teach. As the wants of the College may require, other competent Teachers will be added.

During the War, most of our Southern Colleges have been broken up, and many of them cannot be re-established for years to come. But the Buildings of West Tennessee College have not been destroyed, and its Endowment has been saved from the wreck of the War, with an accumulated interest of about ten thousand dollars, which the Trustees intend devoting, when collected, to the improvement and enlargement of the College buildings.

They have the means therefore of still carrying on the College. And they propose re-establishing it on such liberal terms that all may patronize it. It will be their aim to secure the best Teachers in the South; and, as far as possible, they will endeavor to have the various Protestant Churches of the South represented in the Faculty, so that all the Southern people, of all Denominations may patronize the College. And, as most of the Denominational Colleges of the South cannot be re-established for several years, they invite the co-operation of all in making West Tennessee College worthy of their patronage. It is better that the scattered educational means and patronage of the country should be combined to build up one school of high order for West Tennessee, rather than to diffuse such means among half a dozen minor lights.

During the Spring Session, pupils in the Primary and Preparatory Departments will be thoroughly instructed, and the more advanced pupils will be prepared to enter the regular College Classes at the opening of the Fall Session.
